Description

An elegant solid oak wall mirror dating from the Art Nouveau period, circa 1900. It features a simple rectangular shape, typical of the transition between the late 19th and early 20th centuries, highlighting the quality of the wood and the balance of proportions. The frame, with its gently curved uprights, is characteristic of the Art Nouveau aesthetic, favoring line and material over excessive ornamentation. The mirror retains its original glass with slight signs of age, lending it an authentic charm. The lower rail bears a label "Émile Jammes," attesting to a quality piece, likely produced by a French workshop or manufacturer of the period. Period: Art Nouveau, circa 1900. Material: Solid oak. Signature: Antique label, Émile Jammes. Condition: Good overall condition. Dimensions: Height: 73 cm
