Description

A charming oval tureen in Limoges porcelain, France, stamped with a crowned coat of arms and the mark "Authentique." The celadon glaze is colored throughout. This "Orient" pattern, in an Art Deco style, dates from the 1960s-1980s. The soft, aquamarine hue is uncommon in Limoges porcelain. It features a flattened oval body, slightly geometric side handles, and a domed lid topped with a modernized rectangular finial. The floral decoration is rendered in polychrome transfers in a lovely, romantic pink, green, and white palette, enhanced with a gold rim and finials. This piece is the work of a decorator working behind the stamp frequently used by independent decorating workshops working from the forms of fine Limoges porcelain. A rare find, especially in this celadon color. Approximately
