Description

Chromolithograph on paper mounted on cardboard
Imprimerie Ferdinand Champenois, Paris, 1910
Mesh paper mounted on cardboard
Beautiful antique chromolithograph printed in 1910 by the famous Imprimerie Ferdinand Champenois in Paris. It depicts a young woman holding a bouquet of chrysanthemums, in a soft and elegant style characteristic of the Belle Époque aesthetic. This image comes from a series of calendar posters known as "annual series," a type of production that was very popular in the early 20th century and distributed each year for advertising purposes, notably for the Lefèvre-Utile biscuit brand. The author of this poster is Delphin Enjolras, an artist renowned for his refined female compositions, imbued with delicacy and
