Description

Oval-shaped dish with a scalloped rim highlighted with green and manganese lines. The decoration, known as "en plein" (in full), is a monochrome green design of three terraces. On one terrace, a standing priest; on another, a young Pierrot, the two separated by a flowering shrub. On the rim, flowering rocks; the whole is adorned with vegetation and two large insects. This dish has a superb glaze on the front, while its reverse has a slightly granular surface. Despite this firing flaw, not uncommon in the 18th century, there has been NO RESTORATION. Moustiers, 18th century
