Description

Antique Louis XV period curved secretary desk in solid wood and marquetry, 18th century. This elegant curved secretary desk in solid wood and marquetry, beautifully proportioned and with a warm patina, testifies to its authentic use and traditional craftsmanship. The desk opens with a drop-front that forms a writing surface, revealing a compartmentalized interior with niches and small drawers, ideal for storing documents and personal items. The front features a balanced composition of side drawers and a central drawer, mounted on cabriole legs. The decoration of the drop-front is enhanced by a remarkable geometric marquetry motif around the keyhole, adding a refined decorative touch. Antique lock with its key. The piece retains its antique condition, with signs of use, wear, and age-related marks
