Description

E,Guy likely corresponds to Edouard Guy Conte du Passage, a sculptor active in France during the 1920s and 30s, known for his animal and decorative bronzes. Bronze works by this typically Art Deco artist can be found at auction. This artist belongs to a group of animal sculptors whose French Art Deco style was very fashionable between the two World Wars. An important Art Deco bronze depicting a very fine lion on the prowl, with a brown patina on a black marble base and a few small chips, cast in the 1930s. The lion's striking pose is particularly well executed. This lion, which shows the influence of Cubism, can be attributed to the Art Deco movement.
