Description

An elegant pair of baluster vases in peach blossom marble, resting on a pedestal and a molded square base. The flared neck, topped with a wide lip, emphasizes the purity of the lines inherited from Antiquity and reinterpreted in the Neoclassical style. Peach blossom marble, prized since the 18th century for its nuanced polychromy of reds, pinks, greens, and whites, lends these pieces an exceptional decorative presence. The vibrancy of the veining, combined with the simplicity of the form, perfectly illustrates the Neoclassical aesthetic, where balance and the nobility of the materials predominate. Intended to adorn a mantelpiece, a console table, or a large reception room, these vases bear witness to the refined artistry of the marble workers of the late 18th century.
