Description

This small, regional chest made of gray lacquered fir comes from a château in the Cantal region. It is small in size and in good condition, showing its age and featuring attractive, well-defined panels.

The front is simple, while the sides are richly carved. It rests on a shaped plinth base and has an integrated lock. In two shades of gray, this charming chest is a decorative and unpretentious piece of mountain furniture. It is nonetheless charming and useful, and its size is ideal for a living room to store various items, serving as a side table or storage unit in an entryway. Its hinged top is generously sized, and the chest as a whole is well-preserved. It offers clean and practical storage, free from pests. A decorative piece in good condition, with soft, light gray tones.
