Description

Magnificent pair of solid walnut doors in the Renaissance style. Our two doors are each adorned with a sumptuous carved panel, decorated in its center with a cartouche representing a female profile for the first and a profile of a helmeted man for the second. The whole is surrounded by scrolls, foliage and fruits. These two panels with Renaissance motifs were affixed to a walnut frame to allow an opening in a woodwork. Magnificent work of sculpture of great finesse of execution, the whole is in very good condition, however we note a filling on the frames to hide the entries of locks and handles, two small lacks on the border of the medallions, as well as a small detachment of one of the panels on the top left of one of the doors, see last photo. dimensions: Height of each door 150 cm total
