Description

Lucien Joveneaux, a painter born in Lille in 1927 and died in 1996 in Saint-Sébastien-sur-Loire (Loire-Atlantique), was the son of a railway worker. He learned the trade of decorative painter at the age of fifteen. A painter by trade, he taught painting and drawing at the Northern Apprenticeship Center before specializing in industrial painting. The SNCF (French National Railway Company) recognized his talent and commissioned several posters from him, including one for the TGV Atlantique high-speed train. He settled in Brittany in 1982. This beautiful work, an oil on canvas depicting boats in the harbor in the mist, dates from the 1970s and was created when Lucien Joveneaux had his studio in Eaubonne (Val d'Oise). Signed in the lower right corner of the composition. The work
