Description

Box, perfume holder, perfume bottle - 19th century
Refined double-bottle travel perfume holder, dating back to the 19th century, housed in an elegant ebonized wood case richly decorated with brass inlays featuring a repeated floral motif. The box features a contoured profile on the front, embellished with thin metal trim and the original clasp.
Inside are two octagonal cut glass perfume bottles, complete with decorated stoppers, inserted into compartments lined with red velvet and trimmed with cord. The inside of the lid retains its original paper lining.
An elegant toiletry or travel object, designed for carrying essences and perfumes, it represents a precious testament to 19th-century refinement
