Description

Refined Louis XVI bedside table, of Lombard origin, dating to the late 18th century, crafted in walnut with elegant string inlay and framing in light wood, likely maple, in keeping with the restrained and balanced taste of the period. The piece features slender and well-balanced proportions, enhanced by fine tapered pyramidal legs. The top and door are decorated with a carefully executed bookmatched walnut veneer, creating a symmetrical "open grain" pattern that highlights the natural beauty of the wood rather than relying on figurative marquetry. The bedside table has undergone a careful and respectful restoration, preserving its authenticity: the structure is sound and solid, with no losses, and the interior has been finely restored, including fabric lining to the drawer and shelves, making it ready for use. Consistent with its age, there is a slight curvature at the terminal sections of the legs, due to the natural movement of the wood over time, without affecting stability. On the top, in the upper left area, a small darkened mark consistent with an old burn is visible, as shown in the photographs, and does not detract from the overall harmony of the piece. Overall, the bedside table is in excellent condition, with well-preserved surfaces and carefully finished interiors.
