Description

Elegant Empire-style mantel clock dating from the 19th century. The ebonized wooden case features four turned columns framing the circular dial, enriched by a finely chased gilt-bronze surround. Additional gilt-bronze decorations adorn both the base and the top, with floral motifs and classical scrolls typical of the period. The pendulum, also in gilt bronze, displays a refined central ornament. Dial with Roman numerals. This clock combines architectural elegance with neoclassical taste, making it a highly decorative and charming piece, ideal for refined and classic interiors. An authentic antique object, perfect for collectors and lovers of fine antiques.
