Description

Neo-Impressionist School. Oil on canvas "Dignified Peasant Woman" signed lower left Morino. Hungarian School. 55 x 38 cm. Edmund Pick-Morino (1877-1958) studied in Munich (German Empire), Paris (France), and Florence (Kingdom of Italy). Why do talented artists strive to paint old, austere, and sullen peasant women, if not to demonstrate their skill, so that posterity can appreciate their genius? Is there not a more difficult and thankless subject than this? And yet, is this not the opportunity for Pick-Morino to dare a riot of colors, a thick, almost dripping impasto, and an unrestrained brushstroke in order to express the full depth of soul of this dignified woman worn down by labor? Unframed. Good condition. 780 EUR
