Description

This elegant 20 cm tall sculpture is carved from genuine Xiuyan jade, recognizable by its translucent pale green hue and characteristic waxy luster. Dating from around 1950, it exemplifies the craftsmanship of the Late Republic period. The female figure, a deity, is depicted with great finesse: her flowing drapery and the lotus flowers she holds symbolize purity and grace. A refined collector's piece, it exemplifies the classical Chinese aesthetic of the 20th century.
