Description

A meticulously hand-painted and gilded porcelain vase. One side depicts a woman with a child surrounded by lush vegetation, with mountains in the background. Above them, the majestic Japanese phoenix (Hoo) is visible. The other side of the vase also shows birds, including another phoenix. The Japanese phoenix (Hoo) is derived from the Chinese phoenix (Fenghuang). It symbolizes virtue and charm; its appearance heralds the warmth of summer, as well as peaceful and happy times. Kutani, Japan, Meiji era (1868-1912). Signed: Kutani, Matsubara, Sei (Made). Height 27.5 cm, diameter 13.5 cm. Kosen Factory: Founded in 1870 by Shinsuke Matsubara (Kosen I) in Kaga Hachiman, Komatsu City, Ishikawa Prefecture. In 1885, it received the Silver Cup and the Merit Award
