Description

Small 9 x 12 cm travel camera. The "Photographie Vulgarisatrice" brand aimed to democratize photography. To this end, it offered every buyer a photography lesson. In 1896, it was sold with a complete kit for shooting and developing photographs, priced at 9.50 francs. This kit included the camera, a focusing frame, a double-leaf holder for gelatin-bromide plates, a 40 mm lens, a pack of sensitive plates, photographic paper for prints, as well as bottles of developing, fixing, and toning-fixing baths.
