Description

A rare and harmonious set of four sculptures representing Guanyin, the goddess of compassion, an emblematic figure of Asian art. Crafted in Chinese porcelain, these figures are distinguished by the delicacy of their drapery, the gentleness of their expressions, and the elegance of their poses. Dating from the 20th century, this set embodies an aesthetic blending Asian art and Art Deco influences, with clean lines and a beautifully balanced sculptural presence. The white hues of the porcelain highlight the intricate details and lend the whole a remarkable visual purity. The statues come in various sizes, allowing for refined display, together or separately, on a console table, shelf, or in a display case. Please note: there are a few small chips visible on the hands and some fingers,
