Description

Pair of oval Meissen porcelain jardinières with Kakiemon decoration, richly mounted in chased and gilt bronze decorated with dolphins and shells. France or England, 19th century.

Kakiemon is a style of porcelain decoration originating in Japan in the 17th and 18th centuries and was imported to Europe. The Chantilly and Meissen manufactories, in particular, produced numerous pieces of porcelain with this decoration in the 18th and 19th centuries.
