Description

Magnificent small English silver-gilt table bell. It rests on three ball feet and is shaped like a hemisphere with a molded base. A white enamel band adorns the body of the bell. The button is probably made of slightly transparent, iridescent opaline glass, echoing the enamel band. The bell is hallmarked: Lion passant for English sterling silver, Leopard's head for the City of London, Date letter R (inside) for the year 1912-1913. Maker's mark to be identified: WH. Another hallmark to be identified, perhaps that of the retailer? A superb little bell, very elegant with its full silver-gilt finish highlighted with white enamel. 4.9 cm in diameter, 2.8 cm high, 55 grams gross. Very good condition. Minor oxidation and wear consistent with age. The wiring will need to be checked. Pick up in Paris or insured shipping via
