Description

This bronze sculpture depicts an elegant nude woman holding a seashell, in a pose inspired by antiquity. The work perfectly illustrates the style of André-Joseph Allar, a sculptor renowned for his idealized female figures and neoclassical compositions. The high-quality casting, produced by the Susse Frères foundry, is enhanced by a nuanced triple patina, highlighting the volumes, flesh tones, and anatomical details. The artist's signature and the foundry mark guarantee the authenticity and quality of this edition. With its substantial dimensions (74 cm high) and wide diameter, this bronze belongs to the category of large-scale bronze editions from the Belle Époque, intended for prestigious interiors or collections of French sculpture.
