Description

Louis XV side table in solid walnut, with maple wood marquetry.

The top is decorated with a convivial genre scene imbued with a festive atmosphere. Set on a chequered floor conceived as a stage, several human figures unfold in animated and conversational poses, evoking a small theatrical performance. At the centre stands a violin player, leaning against a barrel, seemingly setting the rhythm of the scene. Around him are groups of figures engaged in conversation, gesturing or dancing: a couple in a confidential attitude, male figures dressed in popular costume, and a woman seated beside a table. The broad, theatrical gestures and slightly accentuated postures convey a lively and narrative mood.
