Description

A charming and torrid miniature on ivory in the libertine style of the 18th century, depicting a kiss embraced from behind by a young suitor with enterprising hands. This delightful ivory miniature from the mid-19th century, very much in keeping with the gallant spirit of the reign of Louis XV, is exquisitely executed. This finely crafted subject in soft pastel colors is a lovely work full of daring tenderness, a beautiful miniature in good condition, depicting a subject rarely explored in miniature and not without interest. Presented in its handsome black frame with a gilt guilloché bronze border, it is a well-preserved and decorative collector's piece for the discerning collector.
