Description

A beechwood side table designed by Josef Hoffmann for Maison Thonet around 1930. This piece perfectly embodies the Art Deco spirit, blending geometric lines with refined materials. Its design is distinguished by two oval shelves, one of which is a subtly integrated stretcher between the legs, offering both functionality and visual balance. The cross base, typical of Hoffmann's style, provides stability while asserting a graphic and modern aesthetic. Made of solid beechwood, this side table captivates with its warm patina and timeless appeal. It integrates elegantly into a classic or contemporary interior, as a side table, decorative stand, or centerpiece in a refined living room.
