Description

Tuscan console table, early 19th century
Elegant Tuscan console from the early 1800s, crafted in fine solid cherry wood. The original marble top, with its refined dark veining, gives the piece a noble and timeless character. The slender, harmonious legs are enriched with carved and gilt appliqués depicting winged figures, typical of Neoclassical taste. The lower stretcher with turned rod ensures strength and stability, while the small castors at the feet reflect the console's practical function in reception rooms. A highly charming piece, perfect for entrances, living rooms, or galleries, capable of enhancing both classic and contemporary interiors with an authentic period presence.
