Description

This armchair embodies the understated, geometric elegance characteristic of the Art Deco style of the 1930s. Its stained beechwood frame, with its straight, angular lines, testifies to the precise and refined woodworking typical of the era. The slightly inclined back and straight armrests offer discreet comfort while maintaining a decidedly modern silhouette for its time. The reupholstered seat and back are covered in a tartan fabric in beige and light brown tones, which can be covered with the fabric of your choice. This armchair, both a collector's item and a statement piece, will find its place in an interior where design history engages with contemporary style. Period: 1930 Excellent condition after restoration in our cabinetmaking workshop.
