Description

This Louis XV style beechwood armchair embodies the elegance and refinement of mid-19th-century French furniture. Its straight and majestic back, typical of the Queen Anne style, asserts a noble presence thanks to its carvings while offering excellent support. The finely carved, open armrests extend a harmonious line that is echoed in the gracefully curved front legs, mounted on casters for a touch of discreet practicality. The upholstery has been completely redone using traditional techniques: natural horsehair, pocket springs, and hand-stitched webbing ensure firm and lasting comfort, true to the standards of the period. The restoration work showcases the craftsmanship, ready to receive the final fabric that will complete the piece according to your tastes or the requirements of a historical
