Description

Iranian kilim from the Fars region (southwest Iran), wool, circa 1960. Very good condition. Three medallions stand out against a deep red 'kafzade' (solid) and abraché (a term describing variations in tone within the same color) background. Four hens and roosters, along with a black horseman holding a banner, adorn the field of this authentic kilim in an unusual way. A beautiful beige border with polychrome motifs frames the field. The Gashghai confederation comprises various tribes. Some examples include the Bozorg Kashkuli (the tall ones), the Kuchek Kashkuli (the short ones), the Shishboluki (six districts), and the Amaleh or Yalameh (workers, servants of the Khan).
