Description

Oil on canvas. Original canvas. Signed. In this luminous view of the Zurriola Bridge, dated 1976, Castellar Durquety's brush captures the essence of a San Sebastián torn between romantic nostalgia and modern effervescence. The composition, vibrant with agile brushstrokes and saturated colors, depicts a July afternoon where the sea air seems to hover over the pedestrians who stroll endlessly between the elegance of the boulevard and the Gros district. The vacationers, whose silhouettes evoke the summer exuberance of the 1970s, pass under the bridge's iconic pillars in a golden light that unifies the horizon towards La Concha beach, creating a scene where the city's monumental architecture gives way to the dynamism of everyday life. Durquety does not paint just an urban landscape, but an atmosphere:
