Description

Important votive wreath in gilt bronze, 19th century - Europe. Large processional or statue wreath, in finely chased and gilt bronze, richly adorned with colored stones and cut crystals, a high-quality piece, probably from Central or Southern Europe (Italy/Austria). Description: The structure consists of eight openwork arches, decorated with foliate scrolls in relief, joined to a globule at the top surmounted by a trefoil cross set with a blue cabochon. The decoration is particularly refined, alternating oval stones of emerald green, ruby red, and pink, accompanied by small faceted white crystals reminiscent of old-cut diamonds (glass paste or crystal, untested). The lower band is also openwork, decorated with floral motifs and set with polychrome stones, giving the whole a strong
