Description

A sumptuous pair of Chinese Dehua porcelain vases, also known as "blanc de Chine." Decorated with flowering plum blossoms and Buddhist lion heads. In the style of the famous Blanc de Chine pieces from the Kangxi period, these vases are likely from the 19th century and of superior quality. While the two vases could easily form a pair, they differ slightly in detail. One vase is 31 cm tall and the other 30.5 cm. One vase has a slightly shorter neck than the other. This rare and magnificent pair of vases is free of cracks or chips.
