Condition : Etat d'usage

Material : Wrought iron

Width : 105

Height : 150

Description

A solid iron English headboard, made by Warden & Hotchkiss in Birmingham in the late 19th century. It features a classically inspired ornamental design, with curved lines and a central gilt motif that stands out elegantly against the dark background. It retains its original polychrome paint applied directly to the metal, giving it a historical character and rich decorative appeal. The legs are fitted with casters for easy movement. In good overall condition, with a patina and minor signs of wear consistent with its age.
