Description

An antique amber-lined cut crystal bowl dating from the late 19th century, Victorian period. This exceptional piece is distinguished by the remarkable quality of its thick, richly hand-cut crystal and its finely acid-etched floral decoration on an amber ground. The bowl features an elegant alternation of amber panels decorated with stylized flowers and large areas of clear crystal, showcasing deep and brilliant geometric cut work. The rim is finely scalloped, while the flared base rests on a stable circular foot adorned with dotted and etched motifs. Light passes brilliantly through the crystal, revealing the full complexity of the cuts and the warmth of the amber hue. This bowl perfectly embodies Victorian glassmaking craftsmanship, combining decorative refinement with artisanal excellence. Ideal as a decorative
