Description

Black leather mirror by Jacques Adnet, 1950s. Jacques Adnet (1900-1984) is a major figure in French design, a leading figure of Art Deco and then Modernism, famous for his leather-covered furniture and elegant lines. He was director of the Compagnie des Arts Français from 1928. This 1950s wall mirror, signed Jacques Adnet, has a black leather-covered frame with saddle stitching. Its beautiful simplicity of line is typical of his work, blending equestrian spirit with modern design. A sought-after vintage piece, ideal for an entryway, a chic bathroom, or a dressing room. A classic of 20th-century French design, perfect for collectors or lovers of refined decor. Discover all our other products on our website: www.llantiquites.com
