Description

Buddha Statue Shakyamuni Tathagata Tibetan in bronze copper alloy 19th century The beauty of Buddhist craftsmanship frozen in copper bronze! Created at the end of the 19th century, this large sculpture of Buddha Shakyamuni is derived from Chinese or Tibetan religious crafts. Entirely in bronze, this Buddha is covered with a copper-embossed alloy and silvery bronze chiseled with floral decoration, giving an aesthetically charming result and filled with unique religious symbolism. The posture of this Buddha is that of the Shakyamuni, "the awakened", the body covered with a garment revealing the right chest he sits serenely on a throne in the shape of a lotus flower. His yoga posture with his open hand like a lotus flower is the most popular within the Buddhist religion, it
