Description

TGV in bronze on a wooden base, reduced model of the South-East TGV of the 80s. A bronze sculpture, rare and intriguing! Rare things, here is a bronze model of a TGV Sud-Est train, an iconic model of the SNCF, part of the first generations of TGVs put into circulation in the 80s. The use of solid & patinated bronze in the creation of this miniaturized sculpture is interesting: Bronze is a noble material composed of Zinc and Copper, materials useful for the creation of railways and railway lines. This hard and durable material is condensed to create a charming visual & contrast between artisanal tradition and technological modernity in the 20th century. The TGV is one of the major engineering inventions of the company, it allowed to speed up travel time. For example, for a trip from Paris to Marseille, the travel time
