Description

Art Nouveau stoneware pot with a relief decoration of a vegetal motif of leaves extending into a scroll on the lid's handle. Rare electroplated decoration of a metallic layer in bronze to old gold color partially covering the ceramic, forming in places a fine mesh-like pattern. The glaze is a characteristic flamed stoneware of Denbac production. Tobacco leaves? Or perhaps inspired by Japanese tea powder tins or "cha-ire". Unsigned, the number "34" is impressed under the base for the model. Circa 1915. Good condition - small chip on the inner edge of the lid; the metal foil is slightly peeling in two places (see photos).
