Description

Paul MILET (1870-1950) Sèvres, turquoise blue candy box Art Deco period And if you let yourself be charmed by the beauty and Art Deco sophistication of Sèvres earthenware by Paul Milet? Creation of the French ceramist artist Paul Milet born in 1870 and died in 1950, this bonbonnière is a proof of the ingenious innovation of ceramics and the search for new enamelling by its creator. Singular and perfectly geometric, this candy box comes from the Art Deco period from 1910 to 1939. Son of Félix Optat Milet (1838-1911) ceramist and great friend of the ceramist Clément Massier, he transmits to his son the taste to create and experiment ceramics and its enamels. Following the creation of his own factory by his father, Paul Milet became a chemist and at only 20 years old,
