Description

Animal sculpture of two recently hatched swans perched on their mother's back, providing a safe resting place and preventing them from tiring themselves out swimming. The sculpture is made of polished metal, similar to the work of Irénée Rochard (unsigned (1906-1984)), and is an Art Deco piece from the 1930s/50s. It features a brass disc with a foundry crucible over a burning fire, marked "PARIS, French manufacture." In good condition, mounted on a marble and onyx base. Shipping available, carefully packaged and reinforced, sent by registered mail with signature confirmation, insurance, and online tracking via tracking number (flat shipping fee applies).
