Description

Course in Fine Literature Distributed by Exercises, Volume Two, 1748, by Charles Batteux. What if you could learn the basics of literature during the reign of Louis XV? Written by Charles Batteux and printed in Paris by Desaint & Saillant, rue Saint Jean de Beauvais, "With the King's approval and privilege," this antique book contains exercises on the various forms of French literature, their foundations, and definitions. Dedicated to exercises in rhetoric and poetics, this volume notably includes the Exercise on the Ode, with an explanation of the rules of lyric poetry and examples in French and Greek. As informative as it is beautiful, the pages of this work are adorned with illuminated initials and antique illustrations. Lovers of antique books and 18th-century literature, don't hesitate, and
