Description

A rare Talosel and metal trivet, attributed to Line Vautrin, a major figure in 20th-century French decorative arts. The piece features an elegant stylized floral motif, composed of gilded Talosel petals with an amber finish, highlighted by ruby-red circular elements, all encircled by a patinated metal frame. The contrast of materials and the rich color palette are characteristic of Line Vautrin's work and her emblematic use of Talosel. Both a functional object and a decorative creation, this trivet testifies to the artist's inventiveness and modernity, and is highly sought after today by collectors and enthusiasts of French design from the 1950s and 60s. Condition: very good overall condition, beautiful original patina, Talosel well preserved, no visible damage. Period: circa 1950-1960. Materials: Talosel,
