Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Wrought iron

Description

A rare and elegant 19th-century wrought iron console table, featuring remarkable chinoiserie decoration, typical of the Far Eastern taste that characterized 19th-century decorative arts. The finely forged and openwork wrought iron structure is distinguished by the quality of its ornamentation: flowing scrolls, balanced volutes, and, at the center of the apron, a figurative Chinese scene depicting a lively atmosphere with pagodas and figures, executed with great attention to detail and depth. The whole rests on an elegant scrolled base, connected by a central stretcher ensuring stability and visual harmony. The console is topped with a marble slab with nuanced veining, perfectly matching a marble base, lending nobility and contrast to the delicate wrought iron. A high-quality decorative piece,
