Description

Pair of Directoire-style chairs, crafted in Italy around the mid-20th century.

The walnut structure, combining solid wood and veneer, features a harmonious and well-balanced design.

The backrest stands out for its finely "breadstick-carved" upper section and a central openwork detail. The seat is upholstered in plain moss-green velvet and is in good condition. Condition report: the chairs are stable and of fine workmanship, yet they require restoration.

There are woodworm holes and some fissures in the wood that need to be treated to ensure full stability and long-term preservation.
