Description

A rare antique Tansu cabinet from northern Japan, dating from the 19th century. Crafted from cedar wood, this traditional Japanese piece is distinguished by the quality of its wood, its authentic patina, and its original metal fittings, all characteristic of traditional Japanese craftsmanship. Originally designed as a storage unit, it offers several drawers and compartments, combining functionality and aesthetics. Its robust structure and clean lines make it a remarkable piece of Asian art, ideal for a contemporary interior or a collection of antique objects.
