REQUEST, FURNITURE OF THIS STYLE

These chairs are built of mahogany and veneer, generally from the Dominican Republic. They are characterized by simple and elegant forms, based on designs by Charles Percier and often executed by Jacob Desmalter. Our gondola armchair was upholstered in worn silk fabric, which has been removed to reveal its seat and back made of horsehair, pending the replacement of a suitable fabric. The saber-shaped legs display carvings of palmettes and stylized flowers. The elegant armrests extend from the front legs and gracefully curve into the back. The molding is in a semicircle. ROUNDED AT THE TOP OF THE BACKREST AND DELICATELY SCULPTED AT ITS END, THE EXCEPTIONAL WORKMANSHIP OF THIS ARMCHAIR SUGGESTES THE WORK OF JACOB DESMALTER.
