Description

This remarkable piece is a group carved from white coral with impressive technical virtuosity. Standing 25 cm tall, the work depicts two serene female figures, gracefully moving amidst finely crafted branches. The sculpture beautifully utilizes the organic structure of the coral to create a setting of flowers and budding branches, symbolizing nature and rebirth. The fluid movement of the drapery and the delicacy of the features underscore the high-precision craftsmanship. Presented on its dark wood base, this piece offers a striking contrast, making it a refined testament to the art of Eastern statuary.
