Description

The carved and painted wood sculpture depicts the allegory of Wisdom as a young woman standing above a low parallelepiped; she wears a long, plastic tunic fastened at the waist by a knotted belt and a drape that falls over her shoulders. Between the torso and the left arm he holds a large closed volume, while in the opposite hand he holds a lighted torch above his head. The face is turned upwards, the hair gathered in a bun above the nape, from which a flowing lock escapes.
