Description

A covered carved jade vase, China. An important vase in pale green and white veined jade, richly carved, resting on a pedestal. The body is decorated with dragons in relief moving among stylized clouds, a symbol of power and prosperity. The side handles are formed by masks holding finely crafted, movable rings. The lid is surmounted by a winged guardian lion (Fo), carved in the round, a symbol of protection. The stone displays a beautiful translucency and a natural patina, highlighting the quality of the carving and the material. Height: 63 cm. Condition: good overall condition
