Description

Important Louis XV giltwood wall barometer with double dial, signed "Le Carcano à Paris", mid-18th century. This elegant Parisian scientific instrument is finely carved in wood and entirely gilt with gold leaf. The case displays a rich rocaille decoration typical of the Louis XV period, with finely carved foliage, scrolls and asymmetrical motifs characteristic of Parisian production in the mid-18th century. The composition is crowned with a finely carved floral bouquet, a decorative feature often found on Parisian barometers of the period. The instrument features two circular dials:- an upper thermometer- a lower barometer. Both dials are signed "Le Carcano à Paris", a Parisian maker active during the 18th century. The original gilding shows a beautiful aged patina with minor
