production. Specifications Period: late 19th century Material: solid silver Hallmark: prancing horse (maker) Weight: 250 g Length: 38.5 cm Link width: 2 cm Link height: 2 cm Why this price is justified Beyond its aesthetic appeal and natural patina, this piece of jewelry possesses a significant intrinsic component linked to its metal. For example, the price of silver is currently around EUR2,500 to EUR3,000 per kilo on physical markets (indicative spot price), or approximately EUR2.50 to EUR3 per gram. With its 250 g of silver, the metal alone in this chain represents a significant value, even without considering: its age, its rare presence on the antique jewelry market, and the quality of 19th-century craftsmanship. These three elements combined enhance the interest and value of the piece far beyond the simple raw material. Free delivery.
